Reader's Digest and Newsweek are sent at no cost to eligible blind U.S. citizens living at home or abroad. Production and material costs to create braille and recorded versions are expensive. Donations are appreciated to help continue this program.

- Reader's Digest Braille - $152 donation per person for one year
- Newsweek Talking Magazine - $51 donation per person for one year
- Reader's Digest Talking Magazine - $17 donation per person for one year

Note that cassette editions require a special tape player that you can receive on a free loan basis from your state or regional library. A Talking Book-type cassette tape player is designed to play specially recorded tapes that are available only to eligible readers. These players are available on loan from the library in your state that serves visually impaired or physically handicapped readers.

Please contact our Magazine Department at 1-800-223-1839 or magazines@aph.org if you have further questions.
